Certified South Carolina Grown Promotions that Sell Contest Winners Announced

Winners of the Certified South Carolina Grown "Promotions that Sell" contest were announced at the SC Farmers Market Managers Workshop November 10, 2008 in Columbia.

The statewide contest, sponsored by the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, was designed to recognize effective display techniques at farmers markets around the state and, at the same time, feature the Certified SC Grown branding and marketing program.

Cash prizes for the contest totaled $1,800. First place winners who received $300 cash prizes were Richard Stroble of Stroble Produce Farm in Harleyville and Michael Worrell of MiBek Farms in Barnwell.

Second place winners receiving $250 cash prizes were Janis Kerr of Ports Creek U-Pick Produce Doing Business Ad Sunrise Harvest in Georgetown and Martha Dicks of D.W. Farms in Williston.

Third place winners of $100 cash prizes were Emma Skipper of T&S Produce of Summerville, Marvin Russ of Old Plantation in Coward, and Barb Matthews of Countryside Gardens in Pamplico.

Honorable mention winners who received $50 cash prizes were Samuel Campbell of Campbell Vegetable Farm in Summerville and W. B. Gruber of Gruber Farms in St. George.

Walter Limehouse and Paul Widner received $150 each on behalf of the Summerville Farmers Market and Aiken Farmers Market, respectively.

The contest was open to all farmers market vendors selling South Carolina products who are members of the Certified SC Grown program. The winners used display techniques that featured locally-grown produce and products at their best.

For information about community-based farmers markets, call Fred Broughton, 803-734-2224. For more information about the Certified SC Grown program call Ansley Rast, program coordinator at 803-734-2207, or visit www.agriculture.sc.gov and click on Certified SC Grown.

Safe Food Handling Keeps Out Unwanted Guests

Invite your family and friends over for a buffet for the holidays, but close the door to uninvited guests - bacteria that cause foodborne illness. Festive times for giving and sharing should not include sharing foodborne illness. Here are some tips from the USDA's Food Safety Inspection Service to help you have a safe holiday party.

Bacteria are everywhere but a few types especially like to crash parties. And unlike microorganisms that cause food to spoil, harmful or pathogenic bacteria cannot be smelled or tasted. Prevention is safe food handling.

Safe Food Handling: Always wash your hands before and after handling food. Keep your kitchen, dishes and utensils clean also. Always serve food on clean plates - not those previously holding raw meat and poultry. Otherwise, bacteria which may have been present in raw meat juices can cross contaminate the food to be served.

Cook Thoroughly: If you are cooking foods ahead of time for your party, be sure to cook foods thoroughly to safe minimum internal temperatures.

SCDA's Chemical Residue Laboratory - CSI for produce

As you know, this year I have used this column to highlight some of the programs and people who work behind the scenes here at your Department of Agriculture. This month, I'd like to show a little behind the scenes look at one program that's keeps the food your family eats safe.

Every day across this state we buy fresh produce from somewhere: a local grocery store, roadside markets, or farmers market. And it's safe to say, most shoppers never know of the behind the scenes work done by our agency to ensure they are getting a safe product. Sherry Garriss and Chanin Craft in our Chemical Residue Lab here in Columbia are two people who look out for consumers each day. Sherry calls it the CSI for fruits and vegetables. It may not be glamorous like the TV show and there are no stunt doubles, but it is important work.

Sherry has been with our agency 16 years. She joined together with Dr. Bill Brewer at the University of South Carolina to develop a new method called the Disposable Pipette Extraction, or DPX, to test for pesticide residue on fruits and vegetables. With state government facing budget cuts this year and next, we are always looking for ways to save taxpayers money and still do our jobs more effectively.

Chanin Craft conducts residue testing with the new DPX method.

This new DPX test is one of the best examples of doing that. I never have actually watched the procedure, as they don't let me get near the complicated stuff. But it does sound like something from a television drama.

The three pesticide tests Sherry and Chanin run on each sample checks for over 120 different pesticides. These tests would cost the supermarkets and growers between $100 and $500 dollars per sample at a private lab. The old Luke Extraction method took almost 3 hours and costs almost $15 per item per sample to run these screens. The new sample takes half the time and costs half as much. And, with the new DPX method our lab can run 12 samples at once. South Carolina is the only lab in any of the State Departments of Agriculture who have this type of system and it saves time and money.

It's a team effort to perform these tests on your food. Our inspectors purchase the produce samples from supermarkets and the farmers markets to send back to the lab. Sherry and Chanin prep, extract, and run the samples on two Gas Chromatographs and one GC Mass Spectrometer to identify and quantify any chemical adulterants or pesticides found on the produce. This is a free service we provide to the consumers of South Carolina to check food quality and food safety. We can identify, quantify and report any pesticides found to either the grower or to the grocer.

After the samples are chopped, blended and filtered, Sherry and Chanin use an acetone solvent to pull out the pesticides and herbicides to insure nothing is out of tolerance regarding pesticides. The standards are set by the EPA, and if Sherry or Chanin find some out of tolerance then they immediately alert whoever is selling the produce. The great thing is Sherry says they rarely find any samples out of tolerance.

Sherry said they have been really pleased with the new system. Not only have we cut costs, but we've increased the numbers of tests run. Each week they run 30 samples just on produce, but in the future this new method will allow our lab to test feeds, soils, pet food and corn meal.

In addition to the work done in the lab, Sherry is also a member of the Food Emergency Response Network (FERN) and they take advantage of any training that comes along. In fact, Sherry attends the Florida Pesticide Residue Workshop each year and in 2005 attended Homeland Security training too. With new equipment and testing, if there was a food emergency you can bet that our lab staff is trained and ready to respond.

We tell you as often as we can that "nothing's fresher, nothing's finer" than South Carolina. With good lab personnel like we have working for you, we could add "safer". Sherry and Chanin, as all our inspectors do, work hard every day to ensure that South Carolina's agriculture is safe and I thank them for what they do.

- Beef, veal, and lamb steaks, roasts, and chops may be cooked to 145°F.
- All cuts of pork to 160°F.
- Ground beef, veal and lamb to 160°F.
- All poultry should reach a safe minimum internal temperature of 165°F.

Use Shallow Containers: Divide cooked foods into shallow containers to store in the refrigerator or freezer until serving. This encourages rapid, even cooling. Reheat hot foods to 165°F. Arrange and serve food on several small platters rather than on one large platter. Keep the rest of the food hot in the oven (set at 200-250°F) or cold in the refrigerator until serving time. This way foods will be held at a safe temperature for a longer period of time. Replace empty platters rather than adding fresh food to a dish that already had food in it. Many people's hands may have been taking food from the dish, which has also been sitting out at room temperature.

The Two-Hour Rule: Foods should not sit at room temperature for more than two hours. Keep track of how long foods have been sitting on the buffet table and discard anything there two hours or more.

Keep Hot Foods HOT And Cold Foods COLD: Hot foods should be held at 140°F or warmer. On the buffet table you can keep hot foods hot with chafing dishes, slow cookers, and warming trays. Cold foods should be held at 40°F or colder. Keep foods cold by nesting dishes in bowls of ice. Otherwise, use small serving trays and replace them.

Snow-Frosted Ham

- 1 (8-10 pound) boneless, fully cooked ham
- 2 (8 ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
- 1 (8 ounce) carton commercial sour cream
- 2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
- 2 teaspoons celery salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup whole maraschino cherries
- 1 (8 ounce) jar sweet gherkin pickles

Combine cream cheese, sour cream, horseradish, celery salt and pepper in a large mixing bowl, beating until smooth and creamy. Spread cream cheese frosting on top and sides of cool ham.

Drain cherries and pickles on paper towels. Cut cherries in half; cut pickles into thin slices. Alternate cherry halves and pickle slices to form a circle, resembling a wreath, on the frosted ham. Refrigerate ham at least one hour before serving.

NOTE: Recipe may be cut in half for a smaller ham. You may want to wait until right before serving to decorate with the cherries and pickles as the juice may bleed onto the frosting.
